

Building new narratives on migration

BRIDGES Workshop with civil society organisations

30 September 2022 – 09:00 to 17:00 CET

CUAS Mainz, Saarstraße 3, 55122 Mainz

With the aim of bridging the gap between research and practice, the EU-funded BRIDGES project is holding a workshop with civil society actors involved in the production of alternative narratives on migration in Germany, Italy, and Spain. Under the title ‘Building new narratives on migration’, this activity aims to engage key civil society actors in the co-production of more inclusive accounts on migration, providing a platform for them to share their experiences and lessons learned, the available knowledge on how to build effective non-hegemonic narratives on migration, and their potential transferability to other local and national contexts.

In the first session of the workshop, the participating CSOs will be invited to present their projects, focusing on the main challenges and achievements they encountered while developing discursive campaigns. The debate will then be opened to all participants to jointly reflect on the best strategies and practices to build non-hegemonic narratives on migration.

The second session will build on these shared experiences towards the development of a toolkit for civil society organisations on how to build new narratives on migration. A draft of the toolkit will be presented and discussed between all participants, who will actively engage in an interactive exercise called the Migrathon, in which researchers and civil society representatives will apply the general rules and strategies set in the toolkit to a practical case.

The workshop will be followed by a public event in which BRIDGES researchers and CSOs representatives will elaborate on how innovative strategies against exclusionary narratives are promoted by civil society actors in the different countries covered by the project. Some of the researchers and participating CSOs will also be invited to participate in a podcast and a video on this very topic with the aim of disseminating these discussions to a wider audience.

This workshop is jointly organised by CUAS Mainz and Por Causa with the support of the Barcelona Centre for International Affairs (CIDOB) in the framework of the BRIDGES project. “BRIDGES: assessing the production and impact of migration narratives” is a Horizon 2020 research project that analyses the production and impact of migration narratives in a context of increasing polarisation and politicisation around these issues in Europe.
